

Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement for the Financial Year 2020

Introduction

r2c Online Limited (“r2c”) understands the importance of conducting our business ethically and we place the same expectations on our supply chain.

This statement is made on behalf of r2c, pursuant to section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (“Act”) and sets out the steps we are taking to eliminate modern slavery from within our operations and supply chain.

We seek to reassure our customers, partners, investors and employees that modern slavery, including forced labour and human trafficking, has not unknowingly found its way into our supply chains. This statement is reviewed and, where necessary, updated prior to each new financial year demonstrating r2c’s continuing commitment to our obligations under the Act.

Our Business

r2c is one of five UK based affiliated businesses owned by FLEETCOR UK Acquisition Limited which operates as a subsidiary of FLEETCOR Technologies, Inc.

r2c operates out of its offices based in Sheffield – 2 Vantage Drive, Sheffield S9 1RG and has approximately 50 staff members.

Our Approach to Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking

r2c is committed to adhering to and complying with the Act and does not knowingly employ or condone the use of forced labour, including child labour or bonded labour.

Recruiting of new employees includes identity, right to work and residency status checks to ensure potential employees are identified effectively using official forms of identification. These background checks form the basis of r2c being able to make an offer of employment to individuals who are successful during the interview process. r2c recruits for full-time, part-time, temporary and fixed term positions.

Temporary workers are utilised within the business during periods of increased workload. However, all employees are on boarded into the business using the same defined policy and process as permanent employees and contractors.

Currently, r2c does not provide standalone Modern Slavery training or related materials to its employees. Notwithstanding, r2c has adopted a number of supporting policy documents that highlight the company’s approach and expected standards. The current policies include but are not limited to:

- FLEETCOR UK Responsibility and Sustainability Policy
- FLEETCOR Code of Business Conduct and Ethics
- FLEETCOR UK and Europe Whistleblowing Policy

Training and awareness is achieved through our on-boarding process and refreshed annually through training and internal communications; training includes an assessment to demonstrate understanding. Training completion rates are monitored and reported upon by the Compliance Department throughout the year.

Through our whistleblowing policy staff have the opportunity to report unethical or illegal behaviours, such as Modern Slavery, through anonymous reporting to the Director of Compliance. Our Director of Compliance will independently investigate any report submitted.

We have had no concerns raised by our employees regarding Modern Slavery throughout 2020.

r2c's General Counsel and Compliance Departments both remain aware of updates made to the Modern Slavery Act 2015 guidance.

Due Diligence

The nature of our business, predominantly a provider of software solutions for the fleet industry, is such that our supply chains are short and assessed as low risk. As a business, we are not directly responsible for the manufacture of goods.

We continue to carry out due diligence on our supply chain to ensure that our oversight is suitable and sufficient and matches the low level of risks we identified from our formal risk assessment.

In particular, during 2020 we have considered the implications of the global pandemic on the most vulnerable in our society who may, more than ever, be at risk of exploitation from organised criminal gangs and/or Human traffickers.

Risk Management / Risk Assessment

The nature of our business and our supply chain is a relatively simple model, which allows us to assess the risk of potential Modern Slavery offences taking place as low. However, r2c remains committed to ensuring Modern Slavery does not find a way into any existing, or future, supply chain relationships. The r2c business is supported by its General Counsel who work closely with the Compliance Department and are responsible for ensuring r2c's contracts require that customers and suppliers meet its expectations and standards where the potential for Modern Slavery risk is identified.

Key Performance Indicators (KPIs)

r2c does not currently consider its suppliers to be vulnerable to pressures around service level agreements, pricing and cost reduction. However, we remain mindful of how these areas, amongst others, can leave a business vulnerable to the risks of Modern Slavery, and we continue to monitor the impact of service level agreements on our suppliers. Whilst not identifying the need for KPIs to monitor performance we are committed to regularly monitoring and reviewing our supply chain to ensure our assessment remains valid.

online service network

Summary

Modern Slavery, human trafficking and forced labour continue to be one of the great human rights issues of our time. With thousands of victims of this crime throughout the UK alone, it is critical that businesses act responsibly and work collaboratively to support the aspiration of eradicating this criminal activity from our society.

r2c remains committed to ensuring its full compliance with its legal and moral obligations in relation to Modern Slavery and continuously monitors its practices and policies to identify areas of potential improvement or any significant changes in our risk profile.

We formally assess our approach to Modern Slavery Act requirements through an annual risk assessment, carried out by the Director of Compliance. The assessment concluded that the Operations, Services and Products supplied by r2c Online Limited have seen no substantive change during 2020 and, as a result, we have seen no change in our Modern Slavery Act risk profile.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Alan King', with a large, sweeping flourish at the end.

Alan King

Director

r2c Online Limited

Dated: 7th April 2021